TJC Gallery Updates

June 18 Artwalk

Drop by TJC Gallery during this month's Artwalk for a hands-on craft. TJC staff will guide visitors through the construction of your very own pop-up TJC dollhouse. Kids of all ages are welcome; the craft is best for ages 6+.

Can't make it to ArtWalk? Pick up a dollhouse packet during regular gallery hours and follow our Youtube tutorial to make it at home!

Happy Pride Month!

A prominent figure of the mid-century Lexington LGBTQ+ community, Henry Faulkner was known for his fanciful paintings and was also a poet, photographer, performer, and avid traveler. He lived as an openly gay man in New York in the 1940s before settling down in Kentucky in 1956, where he became a lifelong friend to writer Tennessee Williams. Finding comfort in the company of animals, he was often seen in town with one of his favorite subjects, a bourbon-swilling goat companion named Alice. Even after a successful artistic career, he continued to spend time with other free-minded creatives and live a humble, whimsical life—not unlike what his paintings depicted.
